

ABSTRACT: A software system for use on the Internet that allows users to create business presentations and personal slide shows using both pictures and audio input from a microphone on the user's local PC. The pictures and audio are stored on the web site, and the site provides feedback to the creator about who has viewed the presentation. Use of the local PC's recording capability eliminates the need for audio streaming and allows the process to be practiced over a low bandwidth internet connection.

10

15